

Coffee, anyone . . . this unidentified man must be asking.
PHOTO BY MIKE NELSON, GRAND FALLS-WINDSOR ADVERTISER, NEWFOUNDLAND.

Grade Five students eat dried sucker fish at a culture camp where elementary students spend the week learning traditional skills like beaver skinning, fish drying and bear safety. PHOTO BY PATRICK MORLEY, SLAVE RIVER JOURNAL IN FORT SMITH, NORTH WEST TERRITORIES.

Life on the prairies

—When you want it to rain, it won't, and if you don't want it to, it will. The runners in the 200m sprint competition at the Moose Mountain School Division elementary track meet in Carlyle got a bit wet June 11.

PHOTO BY DAWN M. BARKER, THE CARLYLE OBSERVER, SASK.

Life on a PEI farm—Four year old Ila Matheson was all dressed up for her mom's birthday party Wednesday at 5:20 p.m. when she had to feed Paint, a four-week-old lamb on her family's sheep farm in Albion Cross, PEI. Ila and her parents Melaney and George Matheson, along with her little sister Rae, one and a half, have approximately 90 Suffolk sheep on their farm. Paint is the only lamb being bottle fed right now and he will be until he reaches 25 pounds. PHOTO BY MARY-ELLEN GODFREY, THE EASTERN GRAPHIC, PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND.

On the sailboat is Wayne Ste-Croix. PHOTO BY CHARLENE EDEN, SPEC REPORTER, GASPE PENINSULA, QUEBEC.